To whom it may concern:

CMS Inc. is a small company, but our clients around the world depend on us to be completely functional and available to help them solve their safety, emergency and disaster needs. During actual emergencies our customers - be they families or government agencies- need to know that we can perform for them - no matter what. Our computers (like other businesses) are critical to complete our work. Since moving to the area in 2001 we had just about given up on the notion of highly-competent, reliable and friendly computer and network repair or support. Our company was almost crippled using some of the bigger names in area after performing a basic server installation years ago. The horror stories our company faced could have made a movie of the week. Luckily, we recently found Phil Jaderborg at PJ Networks and we instantly noticed the difference the right computer company makes.

Phil quickly learned how we work with our computers and network. He cleaned up and fixed all those annoying things computers do that slow you down while you try to keep business running. Phil even made many additional improvements in half the time others have tried to fix the basics. Being a true engineer as opposed to a "Computer Repair Guy" really makes the difference in our minds. He has a great attitude and never made us feel stupid for asking a question.

You may have already guessed this but we would like to give our highest recommendation to Phil Jaderborg and the staff at PJ Networks. We are already planning our next server installation with this company and are actually looking forward to the project.

Sincerely,

Steven R. Hull
